Such was the column fact, and Mr. Meddoneld's elafement was a deliberato un'tuth. On the 11th of March, 1858, the petition of Donald Campbell and others was presented to the House, setting forth that 341 names of restdents in Romo, Troy and Albany, in the State of New York, had been fraudulently inscribed in the poll books as voting for Mr Fellower-said persons having no vote in the county and not one of them having been procent at the election. The petition showed that Mr Loux had a majority of 327 votes, but that in consequence of the Cambridge fraud Mr Fellowes appeared to have a majority over him of 14 votes, and the prayer was that the matter should be inquired into, and Mr Fellowes unceated. the Lecturer, namely, the right development The first consideration of a morcantile of the gifts received from God, I deny it a in English to the whole world. Whereas Francia Mavier, since his conversion to God and his submission to the Catholic Church in 1635, spent his time es St. Paul, "in tabour and painfulness, in many watchings, in hunger and thirst, in many fastings, in col and nakedness," plessing those that cursed bim, praying for those that persecuted him, praying without ceasing, preaching the Word of God "in all patience, in signs and wondera and mighty deeds." These facts are proved by all the historians of the Saint, by Protestant as well as by Catholic historiana therefore, it is proved that the statement of parity of self-reliance between Luther an Francis Xavier is, to say the least, calculated point of view.

With regard to the hint concerning Luther and Francis Xavier, that "they had that if one had truth in view, the other had fulsehood in view: that if one had a good intention, the other had a bad intention; that if one was pure as an angel, the other was impure as a brute; that if one was a saint, the other was a sinner. So far so good; and I am glad to agree here with the Rov. Lecturer: The rule is good, but who will make the application for it? Let three Protest-

"If the religion of Xavier agreed with ours," says Baldens, in his History of the East Indies, " we should esteem and honour him as another St. Paul, Nevertheless, notwithstanding this difference of religion, his zeal, his vigilance and the sanctity of his morals ought to excite all good men not to do the work of God negligently; for the gifts which Xavier had received to exercise the charge of minister and ambassador of Jesus Christ were so coninent that my mind is not able to express them. If I consider the pationes and meckness with which he has precented to the great and to the little ones the holy and living waters of the Gospel; if I regard the courage with which he has endured injuries and affionts, I am compelled to exclaim with the Apostle, " Who is sufficient like him to do those wonderful Would to God that having been

what you were, you had been one of ours! Richard Haklyet, a Protestant minister England, does not speak less strongly in his Account of the Voyages of the English, when mentioning the Island of Sancian, famous by the death of St. Francis Xavier, "Sancian, says he, " is an island on the confines of China, and near the liarbour of Canton, famous by the death of Francis Xavier: that worthy evangelical labourer, and that divine master of the Indians in what concerns religion; who after great labours, after many injuries and innumerable crosses, endured with much patience and joy, died in a cottage, on a desert mountain, on the 2nd of December. 1552, deprived of all the conveniences of this world, but filled with all kinds of spiritual blessings, having previously preached Jesus Christ to many thousands of those eastern men. The modern histories of the Indies are full of the excellent virtues and miraculous works of that holy man." Tavernier, in the third volume of his Voyages surpasses yet the other Protestant wri nated in that spot his mission with his life. after having established the Christian faith in all the places through which he had passed, not only by his zeal, but also by his example, and by the sanctity of his morals. He has never been in China; nevertheless it is very probable that the Christianity which he had established in the Island of Niphon, spread in the neighbouring countries, and increased by the cares of that holy man whom we may justly call the St. Paul and the veritable Apostle of the Indies." Such testimonics need no comment; however, I conclude thus ; Our Protestant Lecturer says that " Luther and Francis Xavier had very different purposes;" but three Protestant historians affirm that Francis Xavier was a holy man, eminently gifted to discharge the office of minister and ambassador of Jesus Christ, therefore, Francis Xavier had a very good purpose, and Luther a very bad one. Is that the sense which the Lecturer intended to convey by his hint? Is that the sense in which the hearers understood the hint? I have my reasons to doubt it, and therefore, besides my duty to defend the truth of the Catholic Church and the ansullied glory of her Saints, I have deemed it right to put the "ladies and gentlemen" on their guard. What confirms my doubts as to whether the audience rightly understood the state ment, and the hint of the Rev. Lecturer, is the fact of the doubly superlative thanks moved by one gentleman, seconded by another and carried by all, and then presented by the Rev. Thomas Baker, president, for the "very excellent lecture," an expression as much opposed to truth as to grammar. Amicus Plato, magis amica veritas.

Next week I will have a few words on " Paolo," if time permit. I remain, yours in truth,

The New King's Proclamation.

TUAIN, Thursday, Nov. 8. A telegram published to-day announces that King Victor Emanuel made his solemn entrance into Naples yesterday, the 7th, at 9.30 in the forenoon, in the thick of a smart shower, somewhat in the style of those heavy rains which usually, accompanied that popular Sovereign throughout his glorious progress through Central Italy last Spring. The unfavorable state of the weather did not preyent the manifedation of the most lively popular enthusiasm. The new king publish ed the following proclamation : To the Neapolitan and Sicilian People:

The results of the vote by universal suffrage gave me the sovereign power over those noble provinces. I accept this new award of stavery now or may hereafter exist. The election of the Republican candidate.

Abraham Lincoln, to the Presidency of the United States, has operated upon the whole slaveholding south in a mauner indicative of the torments of the damaed. The brutal dastacls and blood stained tyraute, who have so long ruled the country with impunity, are now furiously forming of the mouth; grawing their tongues for pain, indulging in the most horrid blasphemies, uttering the mildest threats, and arowing the most treasonable designs. Their passions " set on fire of hall," are leading them into every kind of excess and they are inspired to a demonical phrenzy. To the South is strikingly applicable at this hour the language of the cevelator :- " Babylon is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and biteful bird .-Her sins have reached unto heaven, and God bath remembeaed her iniquities. So much for dealing in "alares and souls of men;" transpling upon all buman rights, delying God and his eternal law, and giving unlimited ladhigence to every sensual und devilish inclination.
